

Potential Range-Wide Issues

Participants' Perspectives

Importance of Issues to Address in Strategy

NO OPINION

UNIMPORTANT

OF LITTLE IMPORTANCE

MODERATELY IMPORTANT

IMPORTANT

EXTREMELY IMPORTANT

Comments on Issues

(verbatim responses from online Forum Questionnaire #1)

- Pinyon and/or juniper tree encroachment into sagebrush habitats (moderately important).
- Hunting harvest (of little importance).
- Issues related to human disturbance, such as Off-Highway Vehicle use, road access, and impacts from increased recreation, are also important considerations (no importance identified).
- Hydrologic changes (important).
- These are hard to rate as anything less than "extremely important", but from my standpoint, failure to keep the good stuff good (while we work on the stuff that can be good), would be heading in the wrong direction (no importance identified).
- Lack of cooperation of federal agencies to address noxious weed infestations that spill onto private lands and choke out usable varieties of grasses/plants (moderately important).
- Institutionalizing and supporting a process where local communities have increased ownership and leadership in species conservation by truly addressing community needs (extremely important).